

FATE OF TICKET SPECULATORS 'UP TO' THE ALDERMEN

Evening World's Ordinance Is Introduced, and Referred to a Committee.

HEARING NEXT MONDAY.

Mayor Orders That No New Licenses Be Issued or Any Old Ones Be Renewed.

The Board of Aldermen to-day unanimously consented to the introduction of The Evening World's ordinance repealing that section of the City license laws which enable ticket speculators to do business. The Board also voted to refer the resolution to the Committee on Laws and Legislation, of which Alderman James W. Redmond, of Brooklyn, is chairman.

On the motion of Alderman Redmond, who presented the resolution at the request of The Evening World, President McGovern named Monday next at 2 o'clock as the day and hour of the public hearing.

Alderman Redmond will preside at the hearing which will be held in the Aldermanic Chamber at the City Hall. He said to-day, following the introduction of the resolution, that he will hold several public hearings if it is found necessary. Both sides will be heard.

A number of theatrical managers who want to see the present law repealed were present during the meeting to-day. Also on hand were an aggregation of ticket speculators who expressed their chagrin over the turn of affairs. They favored an amendment making the license fee $50 instead of the present $30 rate, rather than see the law abolished.

Measure Given Preference.

Preference was given The Evening World's resolution over a similar measure recently presented by Alderman Brown. The latter represents the Tenderloin district. He urged to-day that his resolution be reported out of committee, and given immediate consideration. Alderman Frank Dowling objected, and when discussion followed Alderman Timothy P. Sullivan raised a point of order which was sustained by the Chair. That settled Alderman Brown's measure, and Alderman Redmond promptly introduced The Evening World's ordinance. It went through with a rush. Alderman Brown gracefully withdrawing all opposition.

The proposed measure "revokes, repeals and rescinds" those parts of the license law dealing with ticket speculators, and leaves no alternative. With the adoption of the resolution, which is clear and to the point, and its signing by the Mayor, sidewalk ticket speculators will go out of business.

Many complaints have reached the Mayor regarding the abuses and annoyances to which the public has been subjected, and he has already taken the initiative.

No New Licenses.

He has given orders that no more licenses be issued to ticket speculators, and that all licenses which expire shall be instantly cancelled and no renewal made. This in itself would ultimately do away with the pernicious ticket speculator, but a year must elapse before the effects of the order would be manifest. Many of the licenses, in fact the bulk of them, have but recently been issued.

In presenting the resolution for The Evening World, Alderman Redmond, who is a Brooklyn lawyer, said he had received a number of letters complaining of the ticket speculator nuisance, and had received assurances from many quarters that the repeal of the law under which ticket speculators are permitted to thrive, was the only means left to effectually put the pests out of business.

There is no evasiveness in the proposed ordinance. It simply calls for the repeal of that portion of the license law under which ticket speculators operate and refers to no other class. It reads as follows:

Evening World's Ordinance.

"An ordinance to repeal those parts of Title 2, Chapter 7 of Part 1 of the Code of Ordinances of the City of New York relating particularly to Ticket Speculators."

"Be it ordained by the Board of Aldermen of the City of New York as follows:

"Section 1—Line 11 of Section 205 of Article 2 of Title 2 of Chapter 7 of Part 1 of the Code of Ordinances of the City of New York, reading as follows: 'Each ticket speculator—$30.' is hereby amended, rescinded and repealed."

"Section 2—Sections 24 and 25, being subdivision 2 of Article 2 of Title 2 of Chapter 7 of Part 1 of the Code of Ordinances of the City of New York entitled 'Ticket Speculators,' is hereby amended, rescinded and repealed."

"Section 3—This ordinance shall take effect immediately."

RECORD WORK IN REPAIRING A SHIP

The Helig Olav Gets a New Rudder Post and Sails for Copenhagen.

As the result of a record breaking piece of repair work, the steamship Helig Olav, of the Scandinavian-American line, sailed this morning at 6 o'clock for Copenhagen. When the ship arrived here on her last trip from the other side it was discovered that her rudder post, a massive chunk of metal, had cracked squarely in two parts.

A factory in Cleveland, O., agreed to cast a new rudder post in ten days and kept its word. For the first time in the history of the Scandinavian-American line an express car was attached to the Chicago Limited, and in this car the new rudder post was brought here, the steamship company paying a special tax of $1,000 for the favor.

The new casting reached Hoboken near the pier of the line, yesterday morning. A local firm of ship builders had already installed a temporary system of hydraulic pipes for use in the job of installing the new casting.

Last night the passengers and the friends who had come to see them off had a dance and a banquet aboard the boat as the guests of Capt. Egensen. It was 2 o'clock this morning before the festivities ended. In the meanwhile a big force of men worked at the stern. They finished the task about daylight and, on the advertised hour, the Helig Olav cast off and headed down the Bay.

SCHOONER LOST IN GREAT HURRICANE

Wreckage From the E. M. Bertha Sighted Far at Sea by Steamer Cherokee.

News of the loss in the recent hurricane of the British schooner E. M. Bertha, Capt. Scott, which sailed from Mobile for Savannah La Mar on July 10, brought to this port today when the steamer Cherokee arrived from San Domingo.

The Cherokee was steaming north on Sept. 20, when about 25 miles east of the coast of North Carolina the stern planking of the E. M. Bertha was sighted. A short distance further on the Cherokee passed a vessel's deckhouse painted white and a quantity of lumber believed to have belonged to the wrecked vessel.

The Cherokee reported having encountered much other evidence of the hurricane.

First a schooner's lower mast broken off at the deck, with boom and gaff alongside the masthead, the jaws and ends of the boom and gaff painted white and apparently only a short time in the water. This was seen early on Sept. 19 and when about 30 miles west of the Bahama Islands. Later in the same day the Cherokee passed a quantity of 2x4 yellow pine and scantling, but this looked as if it had been a long time in the water.

COL. HARRY MICHEL DIES SUDDENLY

Prominent Brooklynite Had Stroke of Apoplexy at His Summer Home

Special to The Evening World. L. L. Sept. 22.—Col. Harry W. Michel, for years prominent in the military, political and social life of Brooklyn, died suddenly at his country home on Seaman avenue, Bayport, early to-day. The Colonel was stricken with apoplexy and quickly succumbed.

Col. Michel, who was sixty-five years old, was a Civil War veteran and member of the "Fighting Forty-seventh Regiment." He had held various political offices and at his death was Deputy Excise Commissioner of Brooklyn borough.

The funeral arrangements have not been completed, but the Colonel will be buried from his late Brooklyn residence at 32 Macos street.

BIG WAVE SWEEPS LINER, DRENCHING CALVE ON DECK

Opera Star's Gown Shares Fate of Other Women's Garb on Promenade.

All sorts of notables and all sorts of weather helped to make this voyage of the Kronprinzessin Cecilie, of the North German Lloyd line, an unusual one. The liner got in this afternoon somewhat overcast with a story of bad going from the time she passed Cherbourg, break-water on the evening of Sept. 16, until yesterday morning, when the skies cleared and the sea calmed.

Head winds, big waves and worrisome squalls kept the bridge constantly wet, so Capt. Hezeman said, and sent salt spray into the chart-house. Late Friday afternoon a huge wave came aboard and swept down the port side, drenching a party of women who were sitting on the promenade deck.

The victims included Mrs. Maurice Untermyer, the wife of the New York lawyer, and Mme. Calve, the singer. Mme. Calve, who had a handsome gown ruined, said a few things to the wave in French which caused it to hurry right back where it belonged, looking for a wave, very much abashed.

Is Through With Opera.

E. V. Groux, who, with John Cort, is to manage Calve's concert tour, went down to Quarantine on a tug to meet her. She is going to sing thirty times, opening at Springfield, Mass., on Oct. 7. Through her maid, who acted as interpreter, the diva announced that she would never again appear in grand opera either on this side of the ocean or her own side. She denied the report that she would sing for Mr. Hammerstein, adding that Oscar hadn't even asked her to sing for him.

Mr. Groux refrained from telling Calve that she had been asked to sing for a concert at the Hippodrome.

Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, in deep mourning, was on board with her son, Harold Vanier Belmont. She will not go to Newport, she said, but after spending a few weeks at her town house will return to England to be with her daughter, the Duchess of Marlborough, whose little son is in poor health.

Herr Andreas Hippel, one of the new directors of the Metropolitan, came on the liner. He declined to talk of his plans for the season, saying he would give a formal statement later in the day from his office at the opera-house.

Col. Astor a Passenger.

Maurice Untermyer said he spent six weeks at Carlsbad recovering from an attack of blood poisoning. A finger scratch poisoned his leg and he came very near losing the limb. He is now entirely recovered.

John Jacob Astor came up the bay standing on the roof of the pilot house, searching out his own rooftops from among the myriad skyscrapers with a pair of field glasses. In Germany, where he spent much of his time, the people mainly favored Bryan, he said, on account of the Democratic tariff views.

The famous Chicago rabbi, Rev. Dr. Emil G. Hirsch, was returning from a two-months' stay on the Continent. He was especially interested in the recent utterance of Commissioner Bingham since corrected, that 50 per cent of the criminals of New York were Jews.

"I am glad to hear that the figures were exaggerated," he said, "but we must remember that 80 per cent of New York's population is Jewish. Moreover, the average Russian Jew is strict with his children. After they have caught the spirit of America, these children are very likely to rebel against the parental discipline which they would never have questioned in their old home. As a result, the parents complain of them to the truant officers and in the juvenile courts, and thus many young Jews are classed as criminals when they have really done nothing criminal."

Charles L. Edgar, of the Boston Edison Electric Company, came home after reviewing the lighting plants of many European cities as a special municipal commissioner for the city of Boston.

AUTO VICTIM'S SKULL BROKEN.

August Deberer, of No. 82 Lawrence street, in Harlem Hospital in a critical condition, suffering from a fractured skull and internal injuries sustained when he was run down by an automobile driven by Granville Nutting, of No. 61 Astor place, Jersey City. The accident occurred on upper Eighth avenue last night. Nutting was locked up.

The Wanamaker Store

Special CONCERT in Auditorium, 2 P. M. Tomorrow

A Store Devoted to BOYS' CLOTHING

The Wanamaker Clothing Store for Boys occupies the center of the Main floor of our New Building, directly under the clear light of the Rotunda. Its location illustrates the importance we attach to it, as a store admirably equipped to serve boys of all ages with clothing of Wanamaker standard—that is, of the highest possible character.

The selection of its stock is supervised by experts who have made the study of proper clothing for boys their life's work—and the clothing reflects the excellence of their judgment.

Every garment is ALL-WOOL, which adds immensely to the service it will give. The workmanship is the best that can be put into it—the natural life of the fabrics is aided by the splendid way in which they are put together, causing the clothing to keep its shape in spite of the hardest wear the boy can give it.

The Fall and Winter stock is ready, extensive in its range of styles and prices—each price affording the utmost value that prolonged search will discover anywhere. There are Russian Blouse Suits with bloomer trousers, sizes for 2½ to 7 years. Sailor Blouse Suits with bloomer trousers, sizes for 5 to 10 years. Double-breasted Jacket Suits with knickerbocker trousers, sizes for 8 to 17 years. Norfolk Jacket Suits with knickerbocker trousers, sizes 8 to 16 years.
